

The Bill of Rights

Amendment I

establishment of religion, or prohibiting people peaceably to assemble,

Amendment

the security of a free State,

Amendment

THE AUTHORS

Amendment IV

persons, houses, papers, and effects, on probable cause, supported by Oath

THE EDITORS?

panel discussion:

Civil Liberties: Past, Present and Future

With panelists:

Kareem Shora, Legal Advisor, Arab American Anti-Discrimination Committee (ADC)

Barrie Gewanter, Director, CNY chapter, American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU)

Gazi Khankan, NY Director, Council on American Islamic Relations (CAIR)

Warren Blumenfeld, Visiting Assistant Professor of Educational Studies

Michael Hayes, Professor of Political Science

Wednesday, 26th Feb 2003

6:00 PM 209 Lathrop

refreshments will be served brought to you by the Muslim Students Association (MSA)

as part of Justice for All Week

The Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee (ADC), established in 1980, is based in Washington D.C. and is committed to defending the civil rights of all people of Arab heritage in the United States, promoting civic participation, and encouraging a balanced U.S. foreign policy in the Middle East.

The Council on American-Islamic Relations (CAIR) has numerous branches across America and has been a key player in determining American domestic policy towards its native Muslims. CAIR is dedicated to presenting an Islamic perspective on issues of importance to the American public.

The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) is the oldest and largest organization committed to the preservation of civil liberties in the United States. Since 1920, this union has been at the forefront of the judicial and congressional battles over civil liberties, from racial segregation to the separation of Church and State. With over 300,000 members, the ACLU continues to be a prominent force for civil rights.